“Since this trial we have used the ec-H2O technology extensively, and it works”

We manage many major distribution centres which have extremely high expectations and standards that are critical to our customers' businesses. My first view on the ec-H2O technology was sceptical and I needed to know that switching to Tennant and ec-H2O would help Servest deliver excellence.

Servest held a head to head trial with a range of equipment and the Tennant M20 ec-H2O far exceeded the performance of any other machine on site. Since this trial we have used the ec-H2O technology extensively, and it works. The benefits of this technology have been proven since installing numerous machines. The technology removes the old chemical residue that has built up over the years, which results in a consistent clean, the traction of the floor is improved and the floors are left dry which means it improves the productivity of the site.
